Has the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

The Persistent Suit of a United States Senator.

BOOTH'S NEW YORK ENGAGEMENT

A Denial of the Story that he was Intoxicated while on the Stage—Rash Project of Two Oarsmen—Eastern Notes.

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—The story of United States Senator Jones's singularly persistent pursuit of Miss Clothilde Palms, whose hand he seeks in marriage, has so turned as to make it common property, and this being the case the full facts were authoritatively detailed to the press to-day by a gentleman who is acquainted with them minutely.

Three years ago ex-Mayor Thompson, while on a pleasure trip, first met Senator Jones for the first time at the Ocean House, Newport. Jones seemed a jolly good fellow, bright and somewhat intellectual, and Mr. Thompson in an off-hand hospitable way invited him to visit him at Detroit, and see how he ran things as mayor of the city. Jones visited Detroit and during a social evening at the mayor's home was introduced to Miss Palms. He was a widower and United States senator; she had youth and money. He was smitten and a week afterward upon the young lady and summarily proposed marriage and was as summarily rejected.

I understand from relatives that he never had another interview with her. However, he was not dismayed and continued to prosecute his suit by letter. After he left the city the young lady was fairly inundated with love letters, and I don't think I exaggerate much when I say she received from Washington nearly a ton of the senator's speeches delivered during the twelve years in the senate.

HIS SUIT RENEWED.

Early last June the senator revisited Detroit to again prosecute his suit in person. He called constantly at the house, but never would Miss Palms be at home to him. His importunities continued with relentless persistence until two months ago, when her father forbade him ever entering the house.

But the most astonishing part of the persecution is yet to be told. Miss Palms is a staunch Roman Catholic and the senator belongs to the same faith. Now refused by the young lady herself, he seeks the assistance of the church. Not content with quarreling with two priests, whom he offended by the bare suggestion of their interference, he quietly appealed to a no less august personage than the Rt. Rev. Bishop Borgess. The bishop was appalled, and his answer to the letter from the senator was one of the most scorching replies ever penned.

Throughout the whole affair the lady has conducted herself with a quiet womanly dignity that has graced her every-day life. She is keenly mortified at the notoriety the senator's importunities has thrust upon her.

Miss Palms is a daughter of Francis Palms, commonly reputed to be the wealthiest man in Michigan. He is long past 70 years of age, and his fortune of $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 is likely to go in large part to his daughter.

EDWIN BOOTH.

A Denial of the Story that he was Drunk upon the Stage.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—The Tribune's New York special says: [illegible] against Edwin Booth has been refuted. He closed a month's season in this city to-night. His acting has been as good as ever in the round of his principal characters, with the notable exceptions of one week's performance as Hamlet, and one utter failure as Iago, usually among the best of his impersonations. The time of the latter occurrence was a Saturday night, when the theater was jammed. During most of the engagement Booth was hesitant from the start and acted unsteadily. In the act where Iago instills the jealous suspicion into the mind of Othello and where Booth's acting commonly is exquisite, he seemed to lose himself completely, and a little later, while standing close to the footlight, he fell forward and would have tumbled into the orchestra had not a fellow actor caught him. His part was cut down during the remainder of the play and many in the audience believed the tragedian was drunk. As much was insinuated in a published criticism and all stories of his intoxication became current.

A complete denial of the rumors is made for Booth and the cause of his singular inability explained. His daughter Edwina has been very ill and he was so deeply concerned that with difficulty was he restrained from closing the season here and going to her. Besides that he suffers terribly from dyspepsia, and during the whole month was unable to attend a rehearsal. The day of the Iago miss[illegible] he was so ill that he sent word to the theater that he could not possibly perform that night, but was induced to change his mind, although so sick that he could hardly walk from his room to the carriage. In the course of the play he was attacked by dizziness, and in the intermission before the mentioned act he lay down, but he did not then swallow a drop of spirits, nor had he done so during the day. An attack of vertigo was what ailed him when he so nearly fell on the stage. "There was not the slightest ground for accusing Mr. Booth of inebriety," says Wm. Seymour, stage manager, "and every member of the company has been aware of his genuine illness."

ESCAPED IN A SMALL BOAT.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Feb. 28.—Yesterday afternoon a telegram received here announced that the schooner Annie D. had broken from her moorings at Cowyard reef and was sinking. The only person on board was Keeper Sisson. The U. S. steamer Cactus started out on a fruitless search for the missing vessel, which was afterwards seen in a sinking condition. Sisson could be seen on board and waves were dashing over the vessel. Later she rolled and Sisson took to a small boat and headed for Fishers. There was a fearful sea running, and those who watched through glasses saw the frail boat battle with the wind and sea and finally land on the east side of Fisher Island. Sisson was in a small boat five hours.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 28.—The prohibition election in Baldwin county occurs on March 18, and the campaign is becoming heated. Yesterday Sam Ennis, anti-prohibitionist and brother of the sheriff, shot and killed Deputy Marshal [illegible] Haygood, prohibitionist. The difficulty grew out of Haygood's criticising an anti-prohibition speech made by a brother of Ennis. Fears are entertained that Ennis will be rescued to-night by his friends.

THE RIGHT AND THE WRONG METHOD

Mitchell's speech in the senate in support of his proposition for violation of our national faith with China could be contemplated with more patience if he were believed to be sincere in advocating that proposition; for, however erroneous as a constitutional or international principle, if it be founded merely on a mistaken view of the subject there would be a chance to reason with it, and even to excuse it. But he knows the proposition to be entirely unsound, and he knows, moreover, that congress will not entertain it. Indeed, it is not probable that any notice whatever will be taken of it in the senate. It might be supposed that such proposition would be more likely to receive consideration in the house; but only a few days ago that body distinctly refused to entertain a bill similar to Mitchell's, the committee to which it was referred rejecting it by a practically unanimous vote. No honorable nation repudiates treaties in this way. Through all ages the breaking of treaties has been regarded as an act of perfidy and baseness. This was that "Punic faith" which has come down to us through the literary traditions of Rome. This it was that inspired the unrelenting war waged by Great Britain against France under Napoleon Bonaparte. All writers on international law are justly severe in their strictures upon the immorality implied in breaches of treaty obligations. And every nation that acts on honorable principles, if its treaty relations with another are found unsatisfactory to itself, seeks modification of them through the channels of negotiation, resorting only to termination of the treaty by its own act after the effort to negotiate for the change desired has been exhausted. This, of course, would be equivalent to a declaration of war if the other nation in interest chose to accept it as such. It is possible, indeed, that a nation may find the conditions of a treaty with another nation so burdensome to itself as to justify so extreme a measure after the effort to negotiate for an adjustment had been exhausted; but this is not the present case, since no proposition has been made to China for exclusion of her people from this country—a measure which, of course, would carry with it exclusion of our people from China—yet there is every reason to believe that China would willingly accept an intimation that such negotiation was desired by the United States. Who supposes, however, that the United States would intimate such a thing? The suggestion is preposterous. Extension of international intercourse, not suspension of it, is the irresistible tendency of modern commerce and civilization. China for ages excluded foreigners and kept her own people at home. But the commercial nations, including the United States, broke into China; and whatever we may say about it here on the Pacific slope, the United States will not hastily break a treaty and sever its national relations with that country, or any other.

All this is as well known to Mitchell as to any other man, here or elsewhere. He does not expect for one moment to accomplish the purpose he has indicated. He is simply trying, after the manner of Haskell, Cra[illegible]lebaugh, Baker and the rest, to ride upon this wave of ignorance, prejudice, passion and folly. His speech in the senate on Friday was solely for home consumption. It was the speech of the member from Buncombe. Congress, it is quite certain, will pass the Morrow bill, which provides for more stringent enforcement of the restriction of Chinese immigration; for this will be entirely in accord with the supplemental treaty; but Mitchell's object was to out-Herod Herod in this business—to make himself "solid" with the voters who commit outrageous acts upon the Chinese, or approve them when committed by others. The house committee has already resolved to report the Morrow bill, and this is as far as legislation will go.

Every country is bound by a just regard for honorable principles to observe the ordinary amenities of international intercourse. Under our system of government it is a function of the president, by and with the consent of the senate, to make treaties; and when such treaties have been made the house has not felt authorized to withhold its assent to legislation necessary to carry them into execution. We are far from saying that congress cannot annul a treaty, since congress has even the power to declare war; but we do say that congress, acting under a sense of obligation to the country and to mankind, will not arbitrarily repudiate obligations entered into by the United States, through treaty, with other nations, and thereby set an example at variance with the principles upon which the amity of nations is preserved. Parliament, the supreme power of Great Britain, never proceeds in this way, and is incapable of it.

Of the general tone of Mitchell's speech little need be said. It differs in no particular from the speeches of the "agitators," here and elsewhere. He asserts that there is "a conflict" here, growing out of the presence of a few thousand Chinese, in which "one race or the other must ultimately be driven to the wall," and he intimates that the conflict cannot be doubtful, unless the United States shall interpose, by total exclusion of Chinese from the country. Such expressions are unworthy to be uttered in the senate of the United States. Every one knows that there is no "conflict" here implying the slightest doubt as to which of the races will prevail. To intimate so great an absurdity is an insult to the manhood of the Pacific slope and to the intelligence of the country. Mitchell's talk, like Haskell's, is for the ears of ignorance, prejudice and unreasoning passion. There is nothing in it that consorts with good sense or practical method. One thing can be done, and no doubt will be done. That is the enactment of the Morrow bill. This will provide for rigid enforcement of the restriction act, and it will be entirely in accord with our treaty obligations to which the country is bound. Under the Morrow bill, a summary of whose provisions THE OREGONIAN published not long since, the Chinese population on this coast will rapidly disappear,—quite as rapidly as the interests of the country, which cannot at once be deprived without heavy loss of so considerable a body of laborers, will permit. As Chinese labor is admittedly the basis of the fish canning industry of the Columbia river, so it is the basis of the fruit industry of California and an aid to innumerable smaller activities in almost every part of the Pacific slope. It would not be possible at once to supply the place of this labor, and its sudden disappearance would cause great loss to the country.

A POLITICAL REMINISCENCE

In the letter from New York published in yesterday's SUNDAY OREGONIAN, there was a story about Salmon P. Chase, late chief justice of the United States, and his daughter Kate Sprague, which, though quite sensational in appearance, nevertheless is full of probability.

It is well known that Mr Chase wanted the democratic nomination for the presidency in 1868, and had laid his plans widely to get it. He was a man of restless ambition, consumed with a desire to be president; and his daughter Mrs. Sprague, then the wife of the millionaire Sprague, of Rhode Island, eagerly seconded his ambition, and with the wealth at her command incessantly promoted it. Chase himself for a long time inspired the Washington dispatches of the New York Tribune, and firmly believed that the influences that had been brought to bear in his behalf would secure to him the nomination.

But he soon found that when the convention assembled that the representative men of the democratic party were not taking to him as kindly as he had supposed. At the critical moment, when the balloting was turning against her father, Mrs. Sprague called in Mr Snow, of the Washington Intelligencer, and proposed to place in his hands $300,000 to control the convention. Mr. Snow wisely replied that it would be ruin to attempt to buy the nomination. Mrs. Sprague at that time could command unlimited money; she was always a politician and an intriguant, and she yearned to preside in the White house, which she would have done had her father, a widower, been elected to the presidency. She did not seem to have any scruples about the moral of the transaction. It is not worth while to doubt that the delegates who read this revelation will be sorry that the money was not distributed, [illegible] that anything could have induced them to nominate Chase instead of Seymour.

Of Mrs. Sprague little has been heard of in recent years. She was long since divorced from her husband, whom she had married for position and wealth, and is now said to be living in France, where she is educating her daughters.

THE YAKIMA [illegible]

The new administration of the Yakima Indian agency, it is said, contents itself with things apart from religious and moral instruction, leaving the Indians to their own ideas in these respects; and it [illegible] they are rapidly going "back to paganism." [illegible] is from a source which ought not to be mistaken and is entirely true, we have no doubt. It proves what we have often urged, namely that a savage people cannot be advanced to a state of permanent civilization by any hurried process. There never was a fairer trial than at Yakima. For twenty-two years the whole management of the Indians, under our national system, was in the hands of an able and devoted man, Father Wilbur of the Methodist church, a man filled with the notion that civilization must of necessity follow Christianization and education. Father Wilbur is a man who does with all his might what he thinks it is his duty to do, and he gave to the work of converting the Yakima Indians a zealous devotion rarely equaled in any missionary field.

The Yakimas are "plains Indians," that is of high physical and mental grade. They lived by the chase, and have the strong bodies and warlike nature of an active and independent people. After a terrible war they were conquered and established upon their present reservation with Mr Wilbur, then a young man comparatively, in charge as supreme administrator. He found his people poor from their terrible losses in the war, docile and easily governed. From the first he applied to them the familiar humanitarian theories apparently with the highest success. About four years ago Father Wilbur retired from his duties, turning them over to Gen R H Milroy, who continued the Wilbur method of administration till he was superseded last summer.

A correspondent of this journal who visited Yakima in March of last year, found a condition which looked like civilization. The Indians were living in houses of their own construction and tilling their own fields. They maintained an organized religious body with a large and handsome church, also a free hospital for the aged and helpless among them. There was a court in which Indian judges administered the laws of the territory under the general authority of the agent, who stated that in two years he had not found it necessary to reverse a judgment of the [illegible]. For various community purposes a tax of $1 per man per annum was assessed by the native judges and paid without protest. In short there was a community of some hundreds of people living in the ways of civilization.

After describing the reservation and its conditions the correspondent, referred to above, wrote:

> The civilization [illegible] has been tested for the Indians by an intelligence far above their own and they are led to it by the constant pressure of authority. It has not developed from within in answer to better motives of life. The Indians wear the white man's civilization pretty much as a Piute chief wears a dress suit, with a good deal of display but [illegible] the normal sense of comfort or fitness. [illegible] the possibility of civilizing these people [illegible]

Recent developments illustrate the justness of these observations. The pressure has been removed, and the Yakimas in less than a year are "going back to paganism." We cannot refrain in the light of this illustration of the Indian character, from saying over again that it is no use to try to civilize the Indian by educating him in books. Let him be taught to work, to herd cattle and to plough. If he learns thus much in one or two generations he will have done well.

The pale vegetarian is astonished by Professor Germain See, the eminent French physiologist, that man cannot maintain robust health in vegetables alone. He declares that human beings require nourishment from the three kingdoms of nature, the vegetable, animal and mineral. The practice of pure vegetarianism is simply impossible and the so-called vegetarians are compelled to make up the deficiency in their food by consuming a quantity of such animal substances as milk, butter and eggs. From the mineral kingdom must be had pure water which can be replaced by no other fluid. There are cranks and cranks. Of these the vegetarian is probably as harmless as any provided he be satisfied to practice his theories upon himself alone and permit his family to eat according to the demands of their appetites. He is, however, as tiresome as any, being always ready with his thesis based upon the assertion that man is not a carnivorous animal, which he delivers in season and out of season regardless of the fact that his own wolfish appearance belies the statement.

There is to be an anti-Chinese convention at Sacramento on the 10th of March. The Record-Union declares that if it is to have any effect its proceedings must be "considerate and temperate," that they "must set the seal of stern disapproval upon all forms of violence toward the Chinese in this country" and that "no chimerical schemes must be entertained for instant displacement of the Chinese." And for this reason: "There are industries it would be the height of cruelty to deprive of Chinese labor until they can be supplied with other labor equal to their needs. The reasonable demands of these industries must be heard, temperately considered, and considerately treated." All of which is, as far as possible, from the kind of agitation we have been having up here.

The Fitz John Porter bill is silent as to back pay. The pay of a colonel from the date of his trial and conviction to the present time would amount to something like $60,000. It is noted that if he shall be restored to his original rank by act of congress it will amount to a declaration that during the period now covering twenty three years he has been defrauded of the salary to which all this time he was entitled to receive. If congress shall pass a law restoring him to his rank and entitling him to be retired like other officers it is difficult to see why a supplementary law should not be passed providing that he shall be paid for lost time. His retired pay, if the bill should pass, would amount to about $3,500 a year.

The New York World's idea of "strengthening democracy" is to have the president turn out two of his cabinet officers, and some half dozen other of his appointees, in order to rebuke malpractices and official improprieties in his own party. This is a heroic remedy, which the president thus far shows no signs of adopting. Reform within the party is never so pleasant as turning out the rascals of the other party.

It is said that Conkling has been invited by the controlling powers of the republican party of New York to re-enter politics and stand for the next senatorship. It is declared that the party cannot hold the legislature without strong leadership and that Conkling is the man for the emergency.

We fear that the English press will soon be able to give us points on the "Oregon style." Lord Randolph Churchill's organ characterizes Mr Gladstone as "the bought and sold advocate of national disruption who has wriggled into power by bribery."

The South now doesn't want the tariff reduced. Says the Atlanta Constitution: "Mr Morrison's tariff bill appears to be directed at the South. Its chief victims are sugar and rice. Wherein has the South hurt Mr Morrison's esteemed feelings?"

The missing link has at last been found. Dr Samuel G Cox, D. D., of Washington D C, says that while Red Star Cough Cure has no opiates and is safe it has more efficacy than cough mixtures which contain narcotics.

[illegible] AND THE ADMINISTRATION.

Washington Special to Minneapolis Tribune: There does not seem to be healing the differences between the administration and the democratic senators. A Southern senator tells me that he has made a canvass of the senate and house and he is of the opinion that not more than one-tenth of the democrats are on good terms with the man at the White house, that is exclusive of southern democrats. The last named were permitted in March last to name the men they wanted for position and they were given them. Therefore the southern members of both houses are Cleveland men. This is in contrast to the lonely condition with eastern, western and northern democrats. [illegible] In fact the president has appointed more men from these sections on the recommendations of politicians than he has of [illegible]. This fact accounts for the appointment of so many ex-convicts, thieves and [illegible]. If the appointing power had consulted more the senators and representatives, possibly the administration would have been [illegible] nor would it have been so frequently compelled to enter the [illegible] of public opinion that it had [illegible] its own friends.

Much quiet chuckling has been observed among the democratic legislators [illegible] over the [illegible] the administration has [illegible] chuckling has been freely indulged in, though [illegible] the [illegible]. If the [illegible] honest democrats will soon have a large measure of control, and embezzlements will be the rule and honest administration will be the exception. Also I will [illegible] honest democrats will refuse to hold positions under the present [illegible], for the reason that they will not submit to being classified with the hordes of [illegible] who have been thrust into office over the heads of men of clean characters.

The way things have been conducted has very much discouraged the body of democratic congressmen. I asked one the other day [illegible] what the prospects were at the coming election.

"Bad almost desperate," said he. [illegible] we have not been able to get [illegible] the positions they desired. [illegible] the president [illegible] his mind before he came here that the men of his party in congress were dangerous ones to follow and he has taken advice of outsiders. I am held responsible, however, for the appointments in my district. Some of them are absolute surprises to me. [illegible] It is wonderful how many appointments are made also upon the personal desires of certain [illegible] officers. [illegible]

POLITICAL EXPRESSION

Harrisburg Telegraph: The memory of the [illegible] Washington is still cherished [illegible] eighty-six years ago. None of his [illegible] gift [illegible] stock.

Philadelphia Press: Most of the [illegible] statesmen around Washington want to be elected president in 1888, but Judge Field seems to think he was elected in 1884.

Philadelphia Press: The presence of [illegible] man of Ohio and McDonald of Indiana is a fresh reminder that President Cleveland might have had a cabinet with brains in it if he had wanted it.

New York Mail and Express: There was a time when a president and attorney general so covered with shame as by the Pan Electric exposure, would have been impeached and put out of their offices.

Cincinnati Times-Star: Mr Morrison says his tariff bill is not what he would have wished. On this point there is remarkable unanimity between Mr Morrison and a great majority of the American people.

Boston Journal: When Chairman Hand[illegible] of the [illegible] committee says that there are millions of American laborers who are idle he tells that which everybody who has given any attention to the matter knows to be false. One f[illegible] in the Blair report would have been lovely.

New York Tribune: A good deal of noise is being made about a bill for the improvement of the consular service. All the bills in the world will do no good unless the secretary of state is convinced that the service abroad is not to be regarded as an asylum for lamed politicians.

Philadelphia Times: The faithful should not despair. An almost clean sweep has been made of the rascals in Virginia, only two presidential postmasters still holding office who were appointed by predecessors of the present executive. In the fullness of time these too will have to go and then there will be time to take up another state.

New York Herald: The president ought to announce to the senate and people: first, that hereafter he will receive no oral communications in regard to appointments or removals and will not allow the cabinet to receive such; and second, that papers in regard to appointments and removals will be open to public inspection and will be sent to the open senate.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Until Col. Vilas makes up his mind concerning the democratic state ticket the speculations of the old wheel horses are idle and their slates are made only to be broken. Col. Vilas is a part of Mr. Cleveland's scheme for a personal party to be constructed out of the democratic party, and a failure to recognize this fact will be a source of later chagrin to the wheel-horses.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

THE MIKADO'S TRIAL TRIP.—This beautiful steam yacht, The Mikado, built by Mr. McIntosh of this city for Messrs. Brown and McCabe, the well and favorably known stevedores here, is a model of beauty and of fine speed, and reflects credit upon her constructor. At 1:30 P. M. on Saturday she started out on her trial trip. Capt. Brown had invited about thirty-five English and American shipmasters and merchants to make the trip with him and witness her performance. The first three miles were run in a few seconds short of seventeen minutes. Her next three in sixteen minutes and her run into the Columbia occupied just one hour, thence to Vancouver in forty-eight minutes against a strong current. She was welcomed on her first appearance upon her true element, by all the steamers she passed, with the blowing of whistles, waving of handkerchiefs and swinging of hats, and by the same tokens of friendship (save the blowing of whistles) by the crowds that flocked to the shores of the river to see her as she flew past. On her arrival at Vancouver all went on shore, where Capt. Brown and Mr. McCabe were toasted and their health drunk. A very appropriate speech by Mr. Beebe of Messrs. Sutton & Beebe, to which Capt. Brown replied in a very happy and humorous manner, followed, after which the health of the English shipmasters was drunk and Capt. McFarlane of the ship ... made a happy response. Then followed some complimentary remarks of Vancouver and its citizens, and all returned on board the Mikado. On the return trip all were served with a splendid luncheon, and champagne in that profusion for which the owners of The Mikado are so proverbial in all their good things to their guests and friends. On arrival at this city after a most pleasant and enjoyable trip, all took leave of the beautiful boat, wishing her and her genial owners success and prosperity.

PUSHING WORK.—The First Street Railway company means business in regard to the extension of their line south. The rails and spikes are already strung along from Caruthers to Pookit, and the necessary ties for the block from Caruthers to Sheridan are on the ground. The iron is not like that used on the rest of the line, but is the common T rail of the size used on narrow gauge roads and such as is used on the Washington street line. The completion of the addition will be a great convenience to people residing in the southern suburbs. Many attempts were made "when times were good" to induce the company to extend their line, but they could not be made to see the propriety of doing so. Now that times are not good, they go to work and extend without being asked. The Third street line also wish to extend their line in a manner which will be very beneficial to the southwestern portion of the city, and the council will probably grant them permission at their next meeting. Application will also be made for another railway franchise at the next council meeting, so it seems that hard times are sort of favorable to street railway enterprises.

CHORUS SINGER ASSAULTED.—Late last night William V. Kent, a chorus singer of the Casino, put in an appearance at the police station and reported that he had been assaulted with a dangerous weapon. Kent insisted that he was a perfect gentleman, but that the man who struck was otherwise. As told by Kent, he was in the saloon at the corner of Pine and First streets, and was in charge during Paul Reichert's absence. One Charles Williams made himself too fresh, and Kent slapped him. He then started home, and when near the Esmond hotel claims some one jumped out of a doorway and hit him in the mouth with a club or sling shot. The blow split his lip. About this time Policeman Nash ran Williams in for drunkenness. On Kent appearing at the city jail, after Williams had been locked up, Williams admitted the assault, but said Kent struck him first. Kent promised to make a complaint against Williams to-day, and in this event the matter will be thoroughly investigated before Judge Dement.

BAKER'S BONDSMEN.—A number of people were somewhat surprised when Michael Burelbach and Hermann Waterholder came to the front and qualified as bondsmen for Nat J. Baker. It was not generally supposed that they were so "well fixed" as to be able and willing to hazard so much money on the probability of Baker showing up when wanted. But as they had the matter explained to them, and each took an oath understandingly, it is probable that they are worth the amount they claimed to be, and their names will be found on the tax roll as paying taxes on the full amount they represent themselves to be worth. Burelbach is interested in a combined grocery and saloon on G street, and another saloon on East Park street, and should be a large tax payer. Waterholter resides and keeps a flour and feed store on F street, and probably contributes to the expenses of the city as all good citizens do. At all events, the facts in the case can be easily ascertained by reference to the tax roll.

PRACTICAL MEN TO BE HAD.—The capitalists who have under consideration the matter of organizing a company here to carry on the manufacture of oatmeal, pearl barley, etc., need have no fears about being able to find a manager for their mill should they conclude to erect one. The item published in these columns concerning the matter has already brought several letters from parties who have had experience in manufacturing pearl and Scotch barley, oatmeal, split peas, hominy, pea flour, rice flour, corn meal and groats, and one who understands the manufacture of infant and invalid's food, which have a world-wide reputation. As there are already two parties engaged in manufacturing the above articles or a portion of them, it is scarcely probable that an entirely new enterprise of this kind will be started here, but if arrangements could be made to have one of the parties now engaged go in with the capitalists here, a large concern may be established.

A PAIR OF BULLIES.—The two immigrants who caused the arrest of a couple of the U. C. & B. T. Co.'s baggage wagon drivers a few days since, have failed so far to appear against them. It appears as if the drivers were not much to blame in the matter. The immigrants, who were from Missouri, were very loud-mouthed fellows, said they had run the town they came from and intended to run this. One of them was a great big fellow, who talked blood and thunder, but when one of the drivers, a fellow about half his size, jumped him, he howled for the police and concluded to let out the job of running this town. There are just lots of people who have been fooled the same way. They leave the East and the West and come out to this far off Northwest to enlighten the benighted natives and get left.

CHINESE RAILROAD HANDS TO BE PROTECTED.—Seventy Chinamen working on the narrow gauge road above Oswego, for the Pacific Construction company, have been warned by Anti-Coolie league, headed by Frank Ford, commissioner of Clackamas county, to leave within thirty days from February 23d. The contractors informed the committee that they had a contract with the Chinamen till the 1st of April, and they proposed to protect them till that time. If the Chinamen wish to stay after that time they must do so at their own risk. But till that time they will be protected by force if necessary. In Oswego there is only one Chinaman, a washman, who has been warned to leave, and is worried for fear he will be driven out before the wash bills due him from members of the association, are paid.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH.—Grace Methodist Episcopal society will hold revival meetings in their chapel adjoining the tabernacle, on Eleventh and Taylor, every evening during the present week except Saturday, commencing at 7:30 P. M. The following ministers will preach during the week and assist in the services: Monday evening, Rev. F. Bonn, pastor German M. E. church; Tuesday evening, Rev. W. S. Harrington, D. D., presiding elder of the district; Wednesday evening, Rev. S. P. Wilson, of East Portland; Thursday evening, Rev. P. C. Hetzler, bible agent; Friday evening, appointment not yet made. A service of song will be conducted for fifteen minutes every evening by J. K. Gill. All persons interested in the cause are cordially invited to attend.

ARRESTS LAST MONTH.—The police made 219 arrests last month as follows: Drunk and disorderly 57, assault and battery 3, assault with intent to kill 2, disorderly conduct 15, abusive language 7, leading horse on sidewalk 2, begging 4, gambling 6, roaming streets after midnight 6, trespass 16, discharging fire crackers 3, larceny by bailee 1, larceny 10, defacing building 2, held as witness 4, assault with dangerous weapon 1, threatening to do bodily harm 1, vagrancy 30, assisting prisoner to escape 1, permitting minors in saloons 2, obstructing sidewalk 4, passing counterfeit money 1, keeping laundry without license 1, counterfeiting 2, prisoners en route 2, burglary 1, soliciting prostitution 1, assault with dangerous weapon 4.

STILL IN JAIL.—Al. White was still languishing in the county jail yesterday afternoon. It was rumored last evening, however, that parties had arrived here who would give bonds for his appearance before the grand jury, and thus secure his temporary release from the things he loathes. Cronin announced that he was ready with $200,000 to bail Burnetty Haskell, if arrested. Why has he not taken a paltry $2000 of the amount to bail poor White out. He is certainly deserving of more at Cronin's hands, as he acted, while Burnetty only blowed off gas.

LOWER PASSENGER RATES EAST.—Yesterday the O. R. & N. Co. announced rates as follows to eastern points: To St. Paul or Missouri river points $50 for first class and $40 for emigrant; to Chicago or St. Louis, $55 for first class and $45 for emigrant; to the Atlantic seaboard $7? for first class and $60 emigrant. These are limited tickets, good for a continuous passage. There is no change in unlimited tickets. A number of passengers who intended to leave for San Francisco by the Oregon last night, and thence east under a deeper cut than had been made here up to Saturday, changed their plans when yesterday's reduction was announced, and went east from here. The impression prevails among railway people here that the rates put into effect yesterday will be the unvarying rates so long as the war among the southern transcontinental lines continues. It is possible that a $40 rate may be made to Chicago, but there is scarcely a possibility that it will go below that figure. The chances are even, so the railroad people think, that some sort of a temporary agreement will be patched up and rates put back to where they were last week. The cut yesterday was made by the O. R. & N. simply to protect the Northern and the Union Pacific. The rate from San Francisco to Chicago, first class, is $30. If the cut had not been made the O. R. & N. would carry a good share of East bound passengers to San Francisco, getting $... which is more than their proportion of the rail rate. As it is, a passenger saves $5 and three day's time, by taking the rail line from Portland.

WILL MOVE WHEN PAID OFF.—At a meeting of the anti-Chinese association of Sellwood the other evening, the subject of "inviting" the Chinese washman there to leave came up. It was suggested that any member of the association who was indebted to the Chinaman should pay his bill, and on motion the members were ordered to do so on pain of expulsion. An inspection of the books of the washman showed that the greater number of the anti-Chinese fellows were indebted to him in different amounts, and he said he was ready to leave as soon as he was paid up. It would probably have suited his creditors better if he had left without being paid.

THE MADISON STREET BRIDGE.—Two bents for the "new" bridge across the Willamette have been erected on the incline to the Madison street dock, and there seems to be a halt in the work. Some say the bridge company are now waiting to be "enjoined," and that the man who is in the enjoining is waiting till enough work is done to make it worth his while to take any legal steps in the matter. Just how this point will be arranged will probably be known soon.

FREIGHT ON CATTLE BY CARLOADS.—It does not seem to be fully understood among cattle men that the special rates for cattle from Eastern Oregon and Washington, on the O. R. & N. line, apply to car lots only. It is specified in the agreement that fifteen cattle shall constitute a carload, and a less number, if they occupy a car, will be charged as a carload, or billed at regular tariff.

A FOUNDLING.—Just before the close of services at Calvary Presbyterian church, a lady passing out, heard the cry of an infant, and going in the direction of the sound discovered a babe, not more than two or three days old, lying near the foot of the steps. She picked it up and carried it into the parsonage, where it was cared for for the night.

W. C. T. U.—Mrs. Rev. Sickafoose will have charge of the bible meeting this afternoon at 2:30 at the W. C. T. U., First and Columbia. There will be reports of the convention from Mrs. Catlin and Miss Weeden. The public are cordially invited.

MISS DuBOIS'S CONCERT.

Much interest is felt among musical people and the community generally over the appearance in public of Miss Belle DuBois after an absence of more than four years in Italy. The events will take place at the New Market theater on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week. Details of the programmes have not been fully arranged, hence they cannot be published to-day. In the first concert Miss DuBois will sing some of the choicest songs from her repertoire, and Mr. Lownsdale will sing Santley's "Only to Love" and Dudley Buck's "Where the Lindens Bloom." The second concert will include the scene of the meeting between father and daughter from "Rigoletto," by Miss DuBois and Mr. Lownsdale, the shadow dance from "Dinorah" and the mad scene from "Lucia," by Miss DuBois—all in costume. At both concerts the best local talent will assist.

Dr. P. Bignami, president of the board of directors of the Theater Sociale, Bozzolo, writing to a Milan journal under date of October 27, 1885, says on behalf of the directors:

"Lucia di Lammermoor" was produced last night at the Theater Sociale for the benefit of that charming artiste, Miss Belle DuBois. At no other time has the theater held so many people. The fascinating beneficiary already used to our enthusiastic applause was sublime in the rondo and finale; also in the waltz, "Ombra leggera," from the Dinorah—all of which the lady was made to repeat in answer to prolonged and frantic calls. She has a clear, silvery voice and perfect intonation, combined with rare agility and a perfect stage presentation. Her figure is sympathetic, lithe and graceful. And with all she gives sure promise of holding a place among the first singing actresses of the day.

THE EAST SIDE

BROKE HIS ARM

A 5-year-old son of John Tay fell from the fence surrounding their residence on Ninth and H streets yesterday, dislocating the right elbow and breaking the olecranon process. Dr. C. H. Raffety attended him.

MISSING MAIL CONTRACTOR.

O. H. Price, who has the contract for carrying the U. S. mails between East Portland and Eagle creek, Clackamas county, has turned up missing, leaving Andrews Brothers, the sub contractors, in the lurch for two quarters' pay—$350. The last quarter's pay was forwarded to Portland, and it has not yet been ascertained whether Price received it, but there is scarcely a doubt of it. His bondsmen, Messrs. C. H. Raffety and William Frasier, will forward instructions to Washington to-day, and meantime the Andrews boys will continue carrying the mail by direction of the bondsmen, who are bound to have the mail carried.

DEATH OF J. H. GARRIGAN

J. H. Garrigan, whose wife died in East Portland, last fall, died Wednesday last at Oakland, California, whither he went for the benefit of his health. It is not learned whether or not he died intestate. Mr. and Mrs. Garrigan had been separated for a number of years previous to her death, and she willing that portion of the estate lying in East Portland to a sister residing in Boston, Mr. Garrigan contested the will. His death, however, will settle this dispute as he claimed only a right to the property during his life. This property consists of four lots and three houses on D street and two lots in McMillen's addition. Mrs. Garrigan also owned one lot in her own right in Oakland, Cal., which she willed to her sister, and also a joint interest with her husband in three lots and one house at Oakland. Of the latter property Mr. Garrigan became the sole heir at his wife's death under the laws of California, and it will now become the property of his "heirs, assigns," etc. Mr. Garrigan was well and favorably known in Portland and East Portland, and for some time previous to his death was a partner in the firm of Freeborn & Co., of Portland.

PASSED AWAY.

Two well known and estimable ladies of East Portland have died within as many days. Mrs. C. H. Meussdorffer, after a lingering and painful illness died at 3:30 Saturday morning. She leaves a husband and three children, with whom the community sincerely sympathize. Deceased was the daughter of the late James Clinton, one of the pioneers of Oregon, whose name has been associated with East Portland since its foundation. The funeral will take place from the family residence to-day at 2 P. M.

Mrs. William Underhill, whose critical condition was chronicled Saturday, died at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn her loss, and in their bereavement they have the sympathy of all. The funeral will take place to-morrow at 2 P. M.

PERSONAL

Miss Rose Goodman of Gervais, who has been a guest of the Misses Fried for several weeks, returned home Saturday.

Mr. R. M. Dooley, cashier of the Ogden National bank, Ogden, Utah, arrived yesterday from the east, and left for San Francisco last night. He will return in two weeks.

Jack Knott left on the steamer last night, accompanied by his son, whose poor health requires a change of climate. They will go to San Diego for a few weeks and then return overland, after which the young man will try Eastern Oregon, in hope of the climate there being beneficial to his lungs.

MORE OUTRAGES.

Nearly Two Hundred Chinamen Driven from their Work in the Outskirts of Albina

At 1:30 this morning fifty Chinese crossed over to Portland from the east side on the Albina ferry, and marched up to Chinatown with their luggage on their backs. They scattered into small squads and found lodgings in various houses on Second street. An OREGONIAN reporter found the "boss man" of the crowd and learned from him that the men were all employed in cutting wood for Joseph Delay, below Albina, and that their camp was located just below the flour mills. About 11 o'clock last night a mob of thirty or more whites came to the camp, woke the Chinamen up and ordered them to leave. About half of the mob displayed revolvers, and the wood choppers were told to pack up and get out as quickly as possible. The Chinese were allowed to clothe themselves and to gather up their effects, and were then ordered to march, which they did. Of course, they offered no resistance. Their fares on the ferry were paid by one of the mob.

LATER.

About ... o'clock this morning the ferry made another trip, bringing over fifty more Chinamen, and about 2:30 a third trip with eighty more, making a total of 180 for the night. Operations were confined to the outskirts of Albina and East Portland, and back as far as three or four miles. Nearly all the Chinese driven out were engaged in woodchopping and grubbing.

About eighty whites were in the mob that went into the clearings. All of them were disguised. Some had their faces blacked, others wore masks, and others had sacks over their heads with holes cut in to look through. All were armed.

In the towns of East Portland and Albina everything is quiet, and none of the washmen or servants have been disturbed. A telephone message from THE OREGONIAN to the watchman at Albina was the first intimation he had of the outrages back of town.

It is known that several agitators from Portland were in the mob. Five men, who came over on the Albina ferry at 5 o'clock this morning, when questioned by a policeman, said they had been over and had had the "loveliest" time.

OREGON

Died February 20, at Canyon City, Mrs. ... McTacken, aged ... years and 7 months.

Canyon City News: From present indications it seems that the price of wool will range higher this year than last. The tone of eastern markets is steady and firm at an advance over last year's prices, which point to better times for the woolgrower.

Weston Leader: Monday, February 15, Al Thompson, who has been living up on the Umatilla river, wandered off into the woods under the delusion that some men were coming to kill him. Next day search was made for him, but all that was found were his shoes and overcoat, and it was feared that he had met his death. Wednesday, however, he was found in one of the deep gorges that run off from the river. He was in a most pitiable condition. He had taken off his shoes so that his imaginary pursuers might not track him, and his feet were terribly bruised and lacerated from traveling over the sharp rocks. He was brought to town and seemed quite rational, excepting on the one point of the dread of being murdered.

WASHINGTON.

February 26, what might have been a great fire in Spokane Falls, was averted by the prompt and efficient work done by the fire department, as it was the loss only amounted to about $3000, the greater portion being water damage.

IDAHO.

Agent Monteith has received orders to obtain lumber and fit up the old garrison for an Indian training school, and the school building at the agency will be used, most likely, in some other manner.

The Prohibitionist Turns it this Way

From the Voice.

The bushel of corn which the distiller buys from the farmers for 30 cents, is according to a calculation made by The Milling World, sold to the drinkers in the form of whisky for $40 50. Thirty cents to the man who pursues a beneficent occupation, $40 20 to the men who pursue the most damnable of occupations. This may be economy, but it is the sort that makes Satan snicker.

REPLY FROM MR ROBY

PORTLAND, Feb. 27.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

A cringing critic, signing himself "P. S.," (which initials very properly, in this instance, stand for Pusillanimous Sneak), labors hard in last Friday's OREGONIAN to connect my name with the election of a school director. It is rarely worth while to notice the effusions of these too cowardly to sign their productions. They are usually persons having such peculiar interests that their names, if given to the public, would be complete answers to anything they might say. Their methods are as ingenious as they are dishonest. In the present case, at first it was a mere "rumor on the streets," next day it was a "charge," and yesterday this sneaking nondescript, acting no doubt on the theory that a "lie well stuck to" may result in something, published it as a well established fact, saying, "it is well known that Mr. Roby is still meddling in school matters." Well, Mr. Roby has long been of legal age, is a taxpayer, and is not aware of any recent act disfranchising him, and if he had the time and inclination would most certainly exercise his right of citizenship in the pending school election, but what are the facts?

I had not mentioned Mr. Versteeg's name in connection with office to more than two, possibly three men, outside of our own household, and then it was merely incidental. If this craven sneak takes exceptions to this, let him come out over his own signature and name the men or admit that he is a skulking scape-grace. It is true I signed Mr. Versteeg's call, as did yourself, Mr. Editor, and many more heavy taxpayers and prominent citizens, for we know him to be an honest man, capable and independent, and possessed of good judgment, but it can make very little difference with me who is elected school director. Equally untrue is it that "Mr. Roby is spending his time, which should be given to the service of the government, in trying to organize a company of gentlemen to publish a daily paper." It is true I did, to a limited extent, co-operate with other gentlemen and officials in the direction named, but to quiet the solicitude of this officious sneak I would say that not one moment of my time has been taken from my official duties and spent as he represents. He should possess his soul in peace, the government service shall not be jeopardized. Finally I would say to my plebeian critic, stick to your obscurity. The poverty of your ideas will render you a failure in the fields to which you aspire, and your constant repetitions are so clearly in keeping with your character that you are made an easy prey to detection, and as you can not write anything truthful enough to father with your signature you would better subside entirely.

C. W. ROBY.

Only a Pretext.

Olympia Partisan

The Chinese agitation is a pretext. The real object and cause lies deeper. In no other country under the canopy of heaven could such sentiments be uttered to a mob as were uttered in the city of Portland last Saturday, and those who uttered them not taste the sting of violated law. Men must be made to give utterances to such sentiments, and other men made to listen to them.

SHERMAN AND GRANT

Extracts from an Address Prepared by the Former.

THE UNFORTUNATE EXPRESSION

Sherman Prints in Full his Letter to Col Scott Containing the Allusion to Grant. The Action of Frye

NEW YORK, Feb. [illegible] The North American Review for March contains a long letter from Gen. Sherman to Col. Scott, which was the basis of the controversy with Gen. Frye, preceded by an address which was intended to be delivered before [illegible] Cincinnati but [illegible] the sudden and unexpected death of Gen. W. S. Hancock [illegible] the existing [illegible] whole character of the proceedings. [illegible] are extracts from the letter:

[illegible] While [illegible] retirement and peace newspapers [illegible] credit [illegible] me as everybody else. They have published that my family will [illegible] can [illegible] we are discontented [illegible] paper [illegible] reason. There is no secret about [illegible]. My family [illegible] understand the [illegible]. I ever [illegible] the failure of the Harrison Wire company at St. Louis which involved my [illegible] Capt. Fitch and which [illegible] his family to Pittsburg [illegible]. Three of my children [illegible] there [illegible]. He wants to go to Yale college [illegible] him to receive the best possible education. His going to New Haven in September will probably [illegible] New York to be near him. I shall however retain all the property I possess in St. Louis (not much to be sure) but all that I have to leave my family when I am laid in Bellefontaine cemetery. I am perfectly content with my neighbors and friends of St. Louis to whom I am [illegible] attached and [illegible] them [illegible].

"The Frye [illegible] which I attended [illegible] Gen. Grant's funeral [illegible] while traveling between New York, St. Louis and [illegible] I was officially [illegible] for a tribute of respect that I as president was requested to make to the memory of Gen. Grant, our first commander, before the society of the Army of the Tennessee at [illegible] Chicago, Sept. [illegible]. That address was universally noted and copied in all the journals of the day, and the result of that correspondence [illegible] the special quotation of Gen. Frye in the December number of the North American Review was not made from that public address, but from one of two private letters [illegible] addressed to Col. Robert N. Scott, who had been on Gen. Halleck's staff and is now in charge of the war records at Washington, of whom all army officers make frequent inquiries for scraps of information. Col. Scott is a personal friend, whom I have known since boyhood, and his father before him in San Francisco, and I wrote to him with the same confidence that I would to a [illegible] brother about family matters. I kept [illegible] of such letters and wrote mine hastily and carelessly, and it was only on January [illegible], two months after, that I obtained from Col. Scott a copy of the correspondence from which Frye had made his detached quotation. This correspondence presents the whole story better than I can state it now.

I received too late notice by a round-about way from a gentleman of Cincinnati that Frye was [illegible] laying a trap to catch me, and it was not until January [illegible] that Col. Scott himself first revealed to me the actual source of his mischievous paragraph, detached and used as a text for a sermon. It was as clear a forgery as ever was perpetrated.

Any lawyer or logician reading the whole of this correspondence, not garbled extracts, will see that on the [illegible] of September [illegible] my mind was working out an antithesis to be used at Chicago only three days later, before my comrades and friends, all of them ardent friends of Gen. Grant, to contrast the Grant of Donelson, February [illegible], and the Grant of Appomattox, with the dead hero of 1885, an interval of twenty-three long, eventful years.

I remember only too well that in the last war, in the midst of gloom and tribulation, I derived [illegible] from the public press [illegible] but from such men as S. S. [illegible], Charles Anderson, Silas F. Miller of Cincinnati, James [illegible], Rev. W. G. Eliot and Henry Turner of St. Louis my heart was [illegible] and my arm strengthened [illegible] good cause for which [illegible]. Therefore am I willing to be adjudged in print [illegible] to personal friends rather than to the [illegible]. Now I give the whole correspondence without abridgement, and [illegible] the letter of September [illegible] 1885 [illegible] Gen. Frye made his extract.

SCOTT TO SHERMAN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. [illegible], 1886.

Gen. W. T. Sherman, U. S. Army, St. Louis, Mo.: Dear General: You and I have made a mess of it. You by writing a letter to me of great historic interest and forgetting it, and I by using the letter for information of some of my friends. On the [illegible] of August last you wrote to me for certain information to be used in a speech about Halleck and Grant [illegible] September [illegible] ... On September [illegible] you [illegible] writing, among other things, as follows:

"Now as to Halleck and Grant. I had the highest possible opinion of Halleck's knowledge and power and never blamed him for mistrusting Grant's ability. Had C. F. Smith lived Grant would have disappeared to history after Donelson. Smith was [illegible] nervous, vigorous man [illegible] I reported to him in person at Fort Henry."

I [illegible] letters to [illegible] who is deeply interested in the history of Grant and Halleck, and is very friendly to both, and [illegible] Frye was struck by your [illegible] and desired to [illegible]. [illegible] was neither expected [illegible]. Since the publication of your Morris letter Frye feels it incumbent upon him [illegible] that he has not misquoted you. I recognize that necessity but desire that his vindication be accomplished at the minimum of annoyance [illegible].

I enclose copies of your letters of August [illegible] and September [illegible], [illegible] of Frye's letter [illegible]. Yours sincerely, ROBERT N. SCOTT.

[illegible]

LUCAS ... ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. [illegible], 1885.

Col. R. N. Scott, War Records Department, Washington, D. C. Dear Scott—I thank you as always [illegible] answer of September [illegible] and for extracts [illegible]. I [illegible] have a better friend than the [illegible] world outside of your family and I loved [illegible] your father in California when you were [illegible]. But I [illegible] government of the United States the president and congress have been guilty of the most criminal act [illegible] in the future [illegible]. The government called [illegible] its military service [illegible] 000,000 of its best [illegible] by detachments against an organized rebellion. Newspaper correspondents [illegible] refugees wrote contemporaneous history. Every [illegible] right [illegible] expect that the government would protect his fair fame as learnt [illegible], yet in the year 1885, twenty years after the war, [illegible] government history is still groping in the full [illegible] See Series 1, Vol. [illegible] Part [illegible]. Now if [illegible] twenty years to record how long will four years take. Eighty years. And I contend and have concluded with European officers of world-wide fame that the military profession of America was not responsible for the loose preliminary operations of 1862, and that it was not till after both Gettysburg and Vicksburg that the war professionally began. Then [illegible] had learned in the dearest of the schools of earth the simple lesson of war. We had [illegible] brigades, divisions and corps which could be handled professionally, and it was then we as professional soldiers could rightfully be held to a just responsibility. This is the point I shall endeavor to make in my [illegible] but never reflect on you personally or professionally. I hold the republican party responsible. Instead of appropriating $600,000 [illegible] for war records the annual appropriation should have been a million in 1866, and two millions in 1867, [illegible] so that by 1870 the work should have been done. The [illegible] less than [illegible] years [illegible] their official records.

HALLECK, GRANT AND SMITH

Now as to Halleck and Grant. I had the highest possible opinion of Halleck's opinion and power and never blamed him for mistrusting Grant's ability. Had C. F. Smith lived Grant would have disappeared to history after Donelson. Smith was a strong, nervous, vigorous man when I reported to him in person at Fort Henry. I saw him again at Savannah on his steamboat the Tigress. I believe he threatened to arrest me if I did not prevent Col. Tom Worthington coming to bore him. I saw him after he skinned his leg in stepping into a yawl boat, and I believe as well as I believe that three years ago I lived in Washington that Gen. Smith reported to Gen. Halleck that by reason of the mere accident he could not mount a horse, and that was the real reason that Gen. Grant, then left behind at Fort Henry, was ordered forward to Savannah and Pittsburg Landing to resume his command.

Gen. Smith's adjutant general, [illegible] Newsham, is still living [illegible] Edwardsville, Ill., and he insists that after that general's death he carefully prepared a full copy of letters and telegrams which were sent to Mr. C. F. Smith. These will turn up the same or similar to those [illegible] reported by Badeau on page 106, [illegible] and I believe he possesses the letter of Gen. Robert Allen from which he quotes at length. I am certain that Halleck told as much, and that Allen did also. Halleck and Grant are now dead, but Allen lives in London and has prepared much for publication. In his last letter to me, within a year, intimated that he will not publish, but his MSS. will remain and the truth will come out.

LINCOLN'S ORDER TO HALLECK

I believe this fact as firmly as I do that Mr. Lincoln made his executive order of July [illegible] assigning Gen. Halleck to the command of all the land forces as general-in-chief. I believe Lincoln was justified in this act then [illegible] the condition of affairs, and he (Halleck) having no one willing and competent in his judgment to command three armies, Buell's, Pope's and Grant's, made the best disposition he could of affairs at the West and most properly obeyed the positive order of President Lincoln to go East. Grant, therefore, was called back to Corinth by virtue of his command, not by selection, and simply resumed command of all the troops left in the district west of the Tennessee.

On the 23d of June [illegible] en route from Corinth to Memphis [illegible] miles, and had a long talk with him. He [illegible] ordered there and made the trip [illegible] orders. He was ordered back to Corinth July 11 by way of [illegible] because Halleck was ordered [illegible] the motive for which was the [illegible] of affairs with McClellan in Virginia.

From February 1st, 1862, till July [illegible] long, bitter months Grant was [illegible] these tested and strengthened the qualities [illegible] were in him and which produced [illegible]. [illegible] blame Mr. Lincoln or Halleck [illegible] but I do believe that we after twenty years should know more of the exact truth than [illegible].

With great respect, your friend,

W. T. SHERMAN.

Mr. Davitt in an interview said: "I have the greatest of confidence in Mr. Morley. God forbid that the castle glamour will have an influence over him. If he fails [illegible] constitutional rule in Ireland will be ended, and blood will be mixed with water in our streets."

The Foreign Agitators

Olympia Partisan

Men that worked not a day nor hour more than was necessary to a mere brute existence in the country from which they came, and have closely followed the same rule in this country. They are men, too, who seemingly have not studied the institutions, constitutions and laws of this country sufficient to know when they are violators of the law, who evidently confound liberty with a license to do any and everything that their depraved consciences may permit or approve.

COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, Feb. [illegible]

Light rain showers to-day and cool [illegible] with a prospect for clearing weather to-morrow. A short period of sunshine and warmth would be of great benefit now to the farming classes. As yet they have been able to do little in the way of spring field work. Except on high ground or on that well drained the soil has all along been saturated with dampness and not in a condition to be worked. Last year February was a wet month, the precipitation of rain and melted snow [illegible] inches. March followed with almost unusual dryness. The month now closing has [illegible] a wet one. March promising to open clear and dry. During the month now practically [illegible] the prices [illegible] have been generally characterized [illegible] dues and rather dull markets [illegible] did not display any strength [illegible]. The last week brought [illegible] ... [illegible]

RECEIPTS. [illegible] wheat [illegible] 600 qtls [illegible] 110 qtls bran [illegible] onions [illegible] 400 bbls flour [illegible] sacks from the eastern section.

[illegible]—The bark [illegible] of Stromness [illegible] Balfour, Guthrie & Co. This leaves one [illegible] on spot or [illegible]. The market [illegible] less strength and iron cannot be [illegible]. Wheat markets are [illegible] inclined to do business.

WHEAT [illegible] steady [illegible] with much freedom [illegible] Walla Walla [illegible] is low and [illegible] not easily bought for [illegible] Walla Walla [illegible] the extreme possible [illegible] Valley [illegible] to quote but $1 [illegible] and [illegible] better is to be had. It is firm [illegible] ... Markets abroad are unsettled and shippers are not willing to venture much.

FLOUR [illegible] continues dull and the market has [illegible] no strength. Reduced grinding will soon [illegible] reported stocks fast accumulating. [illegible] as to sale.

MILLSTUFF—Demands not heavy and [illegible] supplied from receipts. Quote jobbing prices: Bran $[illegible], chop $[illegible], shorts $16@17, middlings $[illegible] per ton.

OATS—Arrivals [illegible] and of some importance. That offerings are far below receipts is due to the firmness of many holders and a belief that the product will yet be good property. Shippers find but fair supplies to work on, but are not eager to buy. Sales of best feed are at 31@33c for car lots, and only in a retail way is this exceeded. [illegible] grade has been closed out in San Francisco at very low prices.

POTATOES—Weak, dull and in great [illegible] ... small. Buying prices are 18@[illegible] per bushel with buyers wholly indifferent.

ONIONS—Only a retail trade doing and stocks are large. Best [illegible].

[illegible]—Choice [illegible] steady and the request is not seriously complained of. Common is in heavy stock and weak.

EGGS—A better feeling is manifest because of [illegible] last two days. Packers held [illegible].

POULTRY—Chickens only in any importance [illegible]. Other [illegible] and weak.
